
PRESS RELEASELEONARDO CONTINUES TO STRENGTHEN ITS CYBERSECURITY SECTOR WITH THE ACQUISITION OF BECRYPT IN THE UKAgreement to acquire Bcrypt to enrich Leonardo's proprietary portfolio reinforcing its position in Trusted Cybersecurity

London, 11/03/2026 - Leonardo, through its UK wholly owned subsidiary Leonardo UK Ltd, has taken a further step to strengthen its role in the cybersecurity sector by entering in a binding agreement for the acquisition of the UK company Bcrypt. The acquisition will immediately enhance Leonardo positioning in UK and Five Eyes cyber defences domain and complements the strong existing collaboration between Leonardo UK Ltd (Leonardo), the UK Government and the National Cyber Security Centre (NCSC), to secure the country's most sensitive environments. The operation builds also on the company's delivery of next-generation cyber solutions across Italy, NATO, and the wider European defence landscape.

The initiative marks the next phase of Leonardo's continuous enhancement of its Zero Trust solutions, leveraging Bcrypt's cutting-edge capabilities in secure data transfer, endpoint security, data and cloud security. It builds on Leonardo's recent industrial partnerships and acquisitions in cybersecurity across Europe, notably Axiomatics (Attribute-Based Access Control), SSH Communication (Privileged Access Management and Post-Quantum Encryption) and Arbit (Data Diode and Cross Domain Solutions), in line with Leonardo's industrial strategy.

Roberto Cingolani, Chief Executive Officer and General Manager of Leonardo, stated: "This latest acquisition in the UK marks another step forward in Leonardo's strategy to build resilient and sovereign cyber security in Europe that overcomes current technological fragmentation. It also testifies to our long-term commitment to the UK, a core home market which plays an important role in strengthening our international footprint. Also, thanks to the capabilities acquired in Zero Trust, we are rapidly developing Leonardo's reach in the cyber domain, which is essential for protecting our nations' sensitive data and critical infrastructures which face rapidly evolving threats. This is why cyber security sits at the heart of Leonardo's industrial strategy, playing a key role as an enabler for the development of our multi-domain solutions."

Bernard Parsons, Chief Executive Officer of Bcrypt said: "Being part of Leonardo provides Bcrypt with the global reach and scale necessary to deploy our technology across a wider field. This will accelerate the development of our secure platforms, ensuring that the critical sectors we serve have access to the most advanced tools required to maintain information superiority and digital security."

Closing of the Bcrypt acquisition is subject to regulatory approvals and expected within Q2 2026. During the process, Leonardo was supported by PwC acting as financial advisor and by GOP acting as legal advisor.

Founded in 1996 and headquartered in London, Bcrypt Ltd employs around 100 people, developing technology designed to protect data up to Top Secret classification. The SME's core offering portfolio includes secure operating systems, secure collaboration, and secure data transfer solution and mobile device management platforms, responding to the UK MoD needs for Multi-Domain Integration. Bcrypt Ltd will represent a unique strategic asset, delivering endpoint security and secure data transfer solutions to the UK Ministry of Defence and wider government departments, to enhance the security in this highly sensitive and mission-critical segment.
